DESIGN WITHIN REACH

Airstream continues its three-quarter century tradition of innovation by offering the Design Within Reach Airstream for 2008.

San Francisco-based Design Within Reach (DWR), www.dwr.com, a retailer of well-designed furnishings and accessories usually found only in designer showrooms, commissioned longtime Airstream collaborator Chris Deam (who designs the International CCD Signature Series line) to come up with a holistic model for an Airstream that would perfectly telegraph the DWR core values of authorship and curated authority in design.

Classic Modern Design

Modern American and European designers were tapped to provide the dramatic flooring, the engineered textiles for the dinette cushions and window treatments, as well as Italian laminate countertops and perforated metal accents. The interior also includes a high quality Sony sound system and flat screen TV, and optional wireless external speaker.

The DWR Airstream travel trailer is a tribute to classic modern design, but it's not only a potential museum piece, it's designed to be part of your life. Hitch up and drive wherever you want to go—the middle of nowhere (Joshua Tree? Canyonlands?), or the middle of Manhattan, where you can now see a vintage Airstream in the Museum of Modern Art. Drive all night, or unhitch and linger: the DWR Airstream is designed for both.

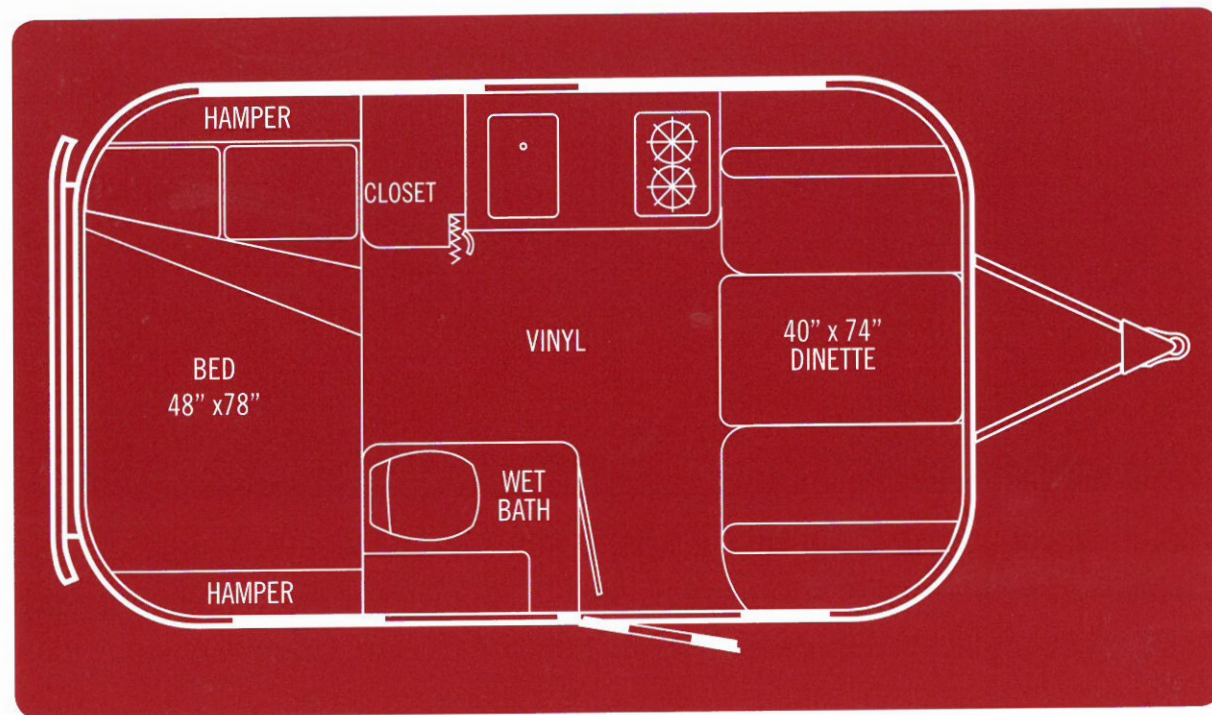

Like other Airstream travel trailers, the DWR is fully self-sufficient: heating, cooling, water, gas, holding tanks, and electrical systems are all self-contained—no hook-ups necessary. Most systems are housed inside the trailer's aerodynamic shell, so little interferes with air flow, giving you the easiest, dreamiest towing conditions possible. Integrating lightness and strength with aerodynamics has been one of our principles for most of a century. Need proof? Two-thirds of the Airstreams ever made—since the 1930's—are still on the road.

The DWR Airstream is for the kind of people who appreciate the most exciting international designs of the 20th century. People who understand and take pleasure in the fine balance of art and utility. Not everyone does. But for those who do, we offer our collaboration: the Design Within Reach Airstream. Much, much more than the sum of its parts.

The DWR Airstream is a mere 16 feet, 7 inches in length. Although compact, the efficiency of design is simple, yet incredibly functional. The exterior features Airstream's famously sleek aluminum skin design and custom pull-out awning. The interior incorporates a new design sensibility, unique materials, and modern classic furnishings—Hellerware indoor/outdoor dinnerware, a Nelson Ball clock, British designer Tom Dixon's coatrack, and luxurious bedding from Matteo.
